A Tale of a Canyon. MRS. MALLETT FALLS FROM A HORSE DOWN THE WALLS OF THE GRAND CANYON, COLORADO, AND IS UNINJURED. [Denver Tribune.] As much interest as there may be attached to the war between the contending railroads in the Grand Canon of the Arkansas, no occurrence has happened in that looality which has attracted so much attention and sympathy as an accident which happened to Mrs. E. J. Mallett, of Cañon City. Mrs. Mallett is an excellent horsewoman, and baving great confidence in her horsewomanship, started out last Sunday afternoon with her husband and other friends on borseback to visit the scene of operations in the canon. Of all the wonderful canons in Colorado, the Grand Canon of the Arkansas is the most aweinspiring. The walls are two thousand feet high at places, and almost perpendicular. Before operations were begun within them by the railroad-men no one ever attempted to pass through the gorge except during the winter, and then on ice. The laborers have, however, made paths in the very sides of the immense precipices, and it was along one of these that Mrs. Mallett and her friends were travelling. She rode a trusty horse, and was as composed as any of her party. They had proceeded to a point beyond the horse-trail and were descending steep hill. The path was a narrow one, the walls of the canon shooting far up toward the blue, clear sky, and for hundreds of feet, until they dipped into the disturbed waters of the rapid-rolling Arkansas. It was at this dangerous spot that Mrs. Mallett's horse stumbled and fell. There was no room for the least falter. This was, therefore, a fatal step. Mrs. Mallett, with almost incredible presence of mind, disentangled herself from her horse. Below her in ten feet was a shelving rock, about fifteen inches wide. This she struck and caught with her hands. With nerve that manhood, the lady held on to the end of the white, 13 colored—total, 19. Age: One day Sylph.....

injured, but of course very much exhausted from fright. Now comes the strangest part of the story. The horse fell also, and lodged on the same shelf to which his mistress was clinging. In falling he had turned completely around, but there he stood on the narrow ledge of stone, hugging the wall, and evidently realizing his position, if horse ever realized anything. He did not stir a muscle, hardly breathed for an hour or more, until ropes strong enough to take him out were sent for ed—total, 4; Monroe Ward, 2 white, 2 colorand obtained at a camp a mile distant. and obtained at a camp a mile distant. sible Mr. Mallett and others came to her rescue, and succeeded in taking her from the more than perilous situation almost un-ance until he was placed upon a sure footing The whole scene would have made one for an artist. The escape of Mrs. Mallett, under the circumstances, is very little less than miraculous, and that the horse should have been saved is almost incredible. The accident and rescue have proven prolific themes of conversation in Cañon, and the first report caused corresponding excitement. Mrs. Mallett is the wife of Professor Mallett, who is the proprietor of the reduction works at Canon.

THE UNEXPECTEDNESS OF SEWER-GAS .-Two of the children of a well-known New Yorker, living in a well-built house up-town, were suddenly taken sick yesterday with all the symptoms of diphtheria. They had occupied a front room in the upper story. In the closet adjoining is a wash-basin with sewer connections. A sickish smell was noticed in the room, and was supposed to come from under the basin, not from the basin itself. Sewer-gas was not suspected, for every basin in the house had a trap of the most approved plan. A plumber was sent for. "Sewer-gas," said he, and set to work to trace it. This was the only room in the house where there was any smell of the kind. The plumber finally found the leak below the water-closet on the floor below and twenty-five feet away. The gas from the sewer had eaten two holes about the size of a pin in the upper side of the trap under the closet and followed the wastepipe up, making its presence known not on that floor but on the floor above, which was supposed to be perfectly protected .--New York Herald, 22d.

PRINCE OF WALES'S PRESENTS .- One of the most interesting features of the Exposition are the presents made to the Prince of Wales during his visit to India in 1875. They occupy considerable space in the main building and are very valuable, certainly to the extent of several millions of dollars. They embrace a crown, or rather a velvet cap, covered all over with diamonds, and rubies, and precious stones, with diamond rings, bracelets, at least twenty swords with their scabbards covered with diamonds, gold dinner- and tea-sets, a silver throne, rings set with diamonds, &c. In short, there must be from three to four hundred different articles, all of great valueeven to saddle-cloths covered with diamonds, guns, sabres, and a great variety of gold and silver articles, the purposes for which they were intended not being apparent to the general examiner. The cases in which they are exhibited arealways crowded with spectators .- C. C. Fulton's last Paris

DEATH OF MR. JOHN P. BALLARD .- Mr. John P. Ballard, a well-known Virginia hotel-keeper, died of heart-disease yesterday evening at the Retreat for the Sick; aged sixty-two years.

Mr. Ballard was a native of Albemarle county, and commenced business in a country store in that county. Subsequently he removed to Palmyra, where he took charge of a hotel, and there prospered and won a considerable reputation. Desiring to prosecute this business upon a larger scale he removed to Richmond and became the proprietor of the Powhatan House, now Ford's Hotel, corner of Eleventh and Broad streets. Afterwards he leased the Exchange Hotel, and at one time conducted both that and the Powhatan House. He gave up the latter hotel, however, and devoted all of his time and energies to the Exchange until he built the Ballard House. He then kept the Exchange Hotel and Ballard House together for a number of years, but finally gave up the Exphange. After the war the Ballard House fell into the hands of M. D. Maine & Co., but Mr. Ballard succeeded, after the lapse of a few years, in getting possession again, and kept it for some time with his brother, Major Thomas B. Ballard, when Mr. John P. Ballard again became its proprietor. The hotel business being carried on to a considerable extent in Richmond, Mr. Ballard lost many of his customers, and finally the hotel and furniture were sold and passed into other hands. After that time, and within the past few years, Mr. Ballard was engaged at the American and at the St. James hotels, in this city, and at one of the hotels in Baltimore. Recently his health has been so bad that he did not engage in any business. He was once quite a rich man, but of late years his fortunes have been varied. There were, perhaps, few men better known in Virginia, and, indeed, throughout a wider section of country, than Mr. Ballard, and none who were more genial and courteous. He was noted for being one of the best landlords in the South, and had a host

It contains a valuable history of the railroad, an account of the coal-fields, country, and climate through which the road passes, and gives descriptions of many interesting points on the line, beginning with Richmond. It has a large number of good-cuts illustrating mountain scenery. A considerable number of advertisements fill the last pages. It will undoubtedly be the means of attracting travel over the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad and prove beneficial to the Virginia mountain resorts. THE TOBACCO TRADE .- By reference to the commercial column it will be seen that the transactions in tobacco on 'Change yesterday were the largest of the season. The prices ruled high, many packages bringing over $50. The highest reported price was $84-paid by James B. Pace, Esq. It was nearly 3 o'clock P. M. when the sales closed. There were some good transactions in loose, prices ranging at from $1 to $7.50. The prospects are good for a considerable lookup in the tobacco trade in the next few months.

The Boat-Race Yesterday. GREAT CROWD ON GAMBLE'S HILL YESTER-DAY EVENING-THREE BOATS START-THE

COQUETTE THE WINNER. The first race of this season, and one of the very few Richmond people have ever had the pleasure of witnessing, took place yesterday evening. The course was on the canal from the Lone Pine (three quarters of mile west of Hollywood) down to the Fifthstreet or old Armory bridge. It was arranged and announced that the boats would leave the Pine at 6 o'clock promptly. A crowd (including many ladies), numbering probably as many as four thousand, was stretched out on the bluff side of the canal at all the eligible points between Holywood and Gamble's Hill. A number of carral-boats (two of them having on board a large pic-nic party bound for the pump-bouse and one loaded with freight) waited at the Armory bridge to give the full width Lodge Independent Order of Good Tempof the narrow stream to the racers. They waited a long time, and at last, getting tired Rev. William Derrick, G. W. C. T., for and impatient, went on their way, and had gotten far enough up the canal to meet the racers and disconcert them greatly at a most interesting tide of affairs.

THE START. The following boats were on hand to start : Boat Sylph .- Crew: F. W. Samuels, build, and the stream narrow and winding, it was arranged that they should be placed in the following order when the signal for starting was given: 1. Sylph.-Fifty yards intervening space. of friends who prized his friendship very 2. Coquette.-Twenty-five yards interveeasily kept her place there. Just before the Tredegar Works were reached the Sylph and Oniole found their way blocked by a canal-boat, and in endeavoring to get ahead they collided. The result was somewhat disastrous to the Sylph, for one of her oars was broken, and she thereby lost distance.

He spoke in praise of this manly exercise; had something pleasant to say of all the crews; regretted the Sylph's accident, and dwelt upon the necessity for the Council to improve Gamble's Hill, and thus to make it worthy of visiting on such occasions as this. He pointed to the ragged sides and ugly washes of the hill, and did not fail to convince his hearers that the moderate expenditure needed to give it a somewhat more presentable appearance should be made; especially now that boat-racing is destined to become popular. CONGRATULATIONS. Messrs. Habliston and Hamilton received many hearty congratulations. Well they deserved them. The only regret was that in a contest where so many excellent gentlemen were engaged all could not be victors. But better luck may be with the Sylph, and Oriole, to, the next time. The Coquette is owned by Mr. Habliston and Mr. Ben. Dashiell. She was built here in Richmond, of Spanish cedar, and is a beauty as regards shape, weight, and appearance.

REFRESHMENTS.

The presentation ceremonies over, the crews and the president of the club, J. Thompson Brown, returned to their clubhouse, near the boat-vard. There they discussed the events of the race and with quite a number of friends partook of refreshments. They promise the public another | race at no distant day.

INSURANCE COMPANIES. - The Auditor has had published in pamphlet form an "abstruct of the laws of Virginia in relation to insurance companies, also forms of power of attorney appointing agent, agent's bond, report of taxes, annual statement," &c.

Editors Dispatch: While perusing the columns of your valuable paper of the 23d instant I saw inserted the reorganization of the I.O.G. T. by a few members of the Order in a convention assembled at Foushee-Street Hall, in this city, on Tuesday May 21st, styled semi-annual session Grand lars, wherein a charge was presented against usurpation of authority; and a committee appointed to investigate said charge report ed the charge sustained. I desire to make the following statement in reference to the matter: About one month ago Rev. William Derrick called a meeting at the office of the Virginia Star to take under consideration the importance of postponing the Grand Lodge session on account of the financial embarrassment of the country, which would no doubt have a tendency to prevent a full representation of the various lodges. The officers present at said meeting postponed the session until November.

Charges were also presented against Dr R. A. Green, G. W. S. The committee also reported these charges sustained. I did not attend the so-called Grand Lodge session, and a number of names of members of the Order which appeared in the issue mentioned above were not present. Neither were there twelve lodges duly represented, as stated. I was not aware that there were eight lodges of colored Good Templars in this city. A great injustice has been done Rev. William Derrick and Dr. R. A. Green. I consider the manner in which the proceedings were entertained as illegal, and I hope the evil may be evaded or redressed. May the God of Heaven protect your sheet and render it an honored instrument in the cause of justice and the right.

Yours, &c., G. W. MATTHEWS, State Deputy, I. O. G. T. Richmond, Va., May 25, 1878. [The information referred to by Mr. Matthews, State deputy, was furnished by the Grand Worthy Secretary of the Order, and
